
AGING TODAY

Vol. XXIX, No. 3

PAGES 14 & 15

May-June 2008

ISSN: 1043-1284

www.agingtoday.org

AUTHORS IN AGING

What do veteran political scientist Robert H. Binstock, coauthor of Aging Nation: The Economics and Politics of Growing Older in America (Baltimore: Johns Hopkins Paperbacks, 2008); Pulitzer Prize winner Robert N. Butler, author of The Longevity Revolution: The Benefits and Challenges of Living a Long Life (New York City: Public Affairs, 2008); and Eden Alternative founder William H. "Bill" Thomas, author of the newly revised book What Are Old People For? How Elders Will Save the World (Acton, Mass.: Vanderwyk and Burnham, 2007), have in common?

These authors are some of the nearly 50 people who participated in the Aging in America Conference of the National Council on Aging and American Society on Aging who have new books, manuals or electronic productions included in the event's Authors and Producers in Aging reception.

Some of the other authors or producers who spoke at the conference were gerontologist Helen Dennis, coauthor of Project Renewment: The First Retirement Model for Career Women (New York City: Scribner, 2008); social worker Joan Ditzion, an original member of the Boston Women's Health Book Collective and coauthor of the new Our Bodies, OurSelves: Menopause: A New Edition for a New Era (New York City: Touchstone/ Simon and Schuster, 2008); filmmaker Michael Jacoby, producer-director of Ten More Good Years: The Battle for LGBT Rights Is Far From Over (New York City: LookOut Films, 2008); and business professor Mary Furlong, author of Turning Silver Into Gold: How to Profit in the New Boomer Marketplace (Upper Saddle River, N.J.: Financial Times Press, 2007).

The complete list is posted at www.agingtoday.org, under the May-June 2008 issue. ❖